In The Social Swim.

Our polite society gave themselves up pretty generally last week to the commencements at the different schools and colleges, and the reschuds had it all their cown way right on the threshhold of a new existence. Weeddings, too, called for no little share of attention among a proportion of our community. Three occurred on Thursday at the Temple and that of Miss Nebeker, on Wednesday, is said to be the first that took place in that magnificent edifice.

The Princess Eulalie's visit was productive of many heart aches among New York's society devotaes, and also a cause of much embarrassment as to how one should deport himself. To bow, or to

of much embarrassment as to how one should deport himself. To bow, or to bow and shake hands was the question.

A very pretty home wedding was that five princess solved all difficulty by extending her hand—smart woman to remember that on Democratic soil there is member that on Democratic soil there is neither prince or commoner. Let our fair dames go over to Spanish ground, enter the palace, and have themselves presented, then mark the change? Here and there are different, you know.

Brittain of Hossian Courted at the bride's mother's, at 8 o'clock, and was performed by Bishop O. F. Whitney. Mr. J. Wash Young, brother-in-law of Miss Sears, gave the bride away. There were two attendants, Miss Maude Neetham and John

By Iar the most interesting wedding

New York women have been having Houston, whither the best wishes of a their share also, with doing honor to all host of friends go with them.

a charming little dinner was given Friday, women, accomplished and stately, downed a marvelous display of sorper diamonds and jewels, and got themselves in white satin gowns and point lace of sufficient richness and rereness to make even a princess dumb with amazement, possibly green with envy as well.

A charming little dinner was given Friday evening at 7 o'clock by Mrs. T. B. Beatty in honor of the doctor's birthday, she had decked her rooms profusely with eating purk hawthorn, yellow nasturation, and roses. Those who sat down to the delicious dinner prepared for them were Dr. and Mrs. Plummer, Dr. and Mrs. King, Miss Nevada Davis, Mr. Franklin and Dr. Silver, the last named the delicious dinner prepared for them were Dr. and Mrs. Plummer, Dr. and Mrs. King, Miss Nevada Davis, Mr. Franklin and Dr. Silver, the last named composed and read an ode to Dr. Beatty which afforded much amusement.

The evening was delightful, and a goodly number of guests were present to enjoy the really excellent programme prepared. It was printed upon handsome cream paper, and tied with ribbons of the club colors, red and yellow, one being handed cach guest as they entered.

The epening address was made by Miss Juno Sprague. She spoke of the club, the improvement, as well as the pleasure it had been to each and all of them, of the friendships formed and announced that work would be again resumed in the fall. Her enunciation was clear and distinct, and hor manner easy, thereby creating a very favorable impression.

Miss Edyth Ellerbeck and Hardle Lynch followed with a vocal duet, "The Pale Moon," by Campana. The selection was a happy one; it is a gem and was charmingly given. Not often do two voices blend so perfectly, and they received a tremendous recall which was obligingly recognized.

Mr. Henry Balley then gave a recitation, "Dukite Snake," in superior style, Miss Genere Ellerbeck was next on the programme and rendered "Polacca Brilliante," by Weber. She is a very hrilliant performer, with clear, crisp touch and wonderfully smooth in her runs,

Mr. Scott Wells then read a selection the special was programed as the present to enjoy the text of the club carnations, white marguer ites pansies and of rare loveliness was composed of red carnations, white marguer ites pansies and some loveliness was composed of red carnations, white marguer ites pansies and some loveliness was composed of red carnations, white marguer ites pansies and some loveliness was composed of red carnations, white marguer ites pansies and some loveliness was composed of red carnations, white marguer ites pansies and some loveliness was composed of red carnations, white marguer ites pansies and some loveliness was composed of red carnations, white marguer ites pansies and some loveliness was composed of red carnations, white marguer ites pansies and some loveliness was composed of red carnations, white marguer ites pansies and some lovelines was cle
